Foreseeing a successful future for Psychic Expo

Twice a year, Linda Fulcher of Vision Quest Inc. brings a "Psychic Expo" to the Town of Newmarket.

Held at the downtown Newmarket Community Centre, the Expo includes vendors selling Spiritual and New Age books, crystals and cards - and an array of psychic readers, astrologers, clairvoyants, palmists and aura readers, from across Canada, and other countries, including the U.K., India and Russia, who provide guidance for those who ask.

"At first, the shows were held only once a year, but they became so popular we began offering the show twice a year, about 15 years ago," says Fulcher. In all, Vision Quest Inc. has organized over 1,000 events throughout Ontario.

It was her partner, Paul Fulcher, who first became interested in paranormal psychology during his university studies, and started "a quest to experience the paranormal in real life." The experience was so exciting, and so helpful, that the Fulchers decided to organize a Psychic Expo, "so that many people throughout Ontario could also have this experience with well-known experienced psychics."

Rose Ann Kulyk calls herself an "intuitive counselor," a spiritual teacher and healer, rather than a psychic. "I knew when I was young, that I was here to help the people," the Hamilton-area resident says, speaking at last fall's 36th Psychic Expo.

At the age of 15, she started using Tarot cards, astrology and numerology – but as her own spirituality developed, she began relying on her own intuitive and clair-sentient abilities, and using Angel cards, "oracle" and "inspirational" cards instead.

"My main focus is personal empowerment," she says – utilising a variety of tools, including Reiki, crystals, Angel Therapy and meditation, to help transform the awareness of her clients. She also uses technology, offering phone readings, free conference calls twice a month, and a website (www.thepfectrose.ca).

"It's all about empowerment, and assisting people in creating their future," Kulyk says.

The Fulchers work to bring credibility and professionalism to the field. Some of the psychics who participate in Vision Quest shows also work with large corporations, local authorities and Child Find - and the Expo always includes free seminars and demonstrations.
